Funeral—Program for Lincoln Day—

A Generous Offer—Horse in a Hole—

Buying Diamonds—Jews—Isle of Marken.

The funeral yesterday afternoon of Robert T. Wheeler was largely attended by friends from this town, Oronoque, Meriden and Bridgeport. The pall bearers were Robert Coe who came down in the morning from Waterbury, George A. Fairchild, Harry Wilcoxson, George W. Spall, Frederick Atwood and Edward H. Beers. Rev. Dr. Packard officiated.

Patrick Callahan, who went to Florida some time ago, will remain until the 1st of March. He has improved much in health and his leg, which was injured, is much better. He is enjoying life fishing walking on the beach and sitting on the grass.

Mrs. Oporibrow, who used to live on Broad street in this town, died suddenly in Bridgeport on Tuesday morning. She was residing with a relative. The funeral will be held on Friday at the Neighborhood church, Rev. C. S. Bullock officiating.

A fine program has been prepared by Miss McCall for the High school pupils on Lincoln day. The exercises will take place in the morning of next Friday, as the school has but one session. They are as follows:

Flag Salute.

Reading of extracts from the second inaugural.

Anecdotes of Lincoln, by members of the school.

Essays on phases in Lincoln's career. The Lincoln and Douglass debate. Essays on Lincoln's Contemporaries. Singing of the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

The portrait of Lincoln which hangs in the school room will be decorated with flags, as well as the room.

Theodore Trowbridge, who used to live in the Thompson house on East Broadway, died Monday morning at his residence in Bridgeport. He was a Mason and well known in town. Rev. Dr. Packard officiates at the funeral, and the remains will be taken to Milford.

It is known that if the society of the Congregational church will vote to move its present chapel building so as to become a part of the church edifice, a generous gentleman has offered to remodel it for a Sunday school room, with a committee room added. The chances are the church will agree to the proposition.

No action was taken by the Men's Club Monday night looking towards sending a delegate to the forthcoming Congregational Congress of the churches of New England, which is to be held at Manchester, N. H.

Clotting for the rummage sale at the Neighborhood church tomorrow may be sent to the church, where ladies will be present to receive and classify it.

Yesterday Rev. C. S. Bullock went to New York to lecture on the "Story of the Hudson," under assignment of the Board of Education.

Instead of the afternoon service for the Lord's Supper, the Neighborhood church will hereafter meet immediately at the close of the morning service.

The Red Men of the town have accepted an invitation to attend the Neighborhood church next Sunday evening, to listen to a special sermon by Miss Catherine Beecher in New Haven.

While Mr. and Mrs. Zenas Johnson were driving a horse along Connecticut avenue on Sunday night, the animal fell into a hole which had been left open and unguarded, and sustained severe bruises. It was sent to a horse hospital.

There are still a few more days when the Board of Relief will be in session.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew meets this evening at the rectory.

There were many interesting things said by Judge Beers at the Men's Club about Holland, other than those already reported.

Speaking of the sale of diamonds in Amsterdam, he said they could only be bought through brokers, of which there are hundreds in the city.

Looking at them as a whole there were not two in the whole lot he would trust with a $1 bill. They looked like tramps. They carried diamonds in their pockets, wrapped up in a piece of greasy paper, and they sell them by lots.

So if a buyer wishes a diamond of a certain size, and finds one in a given lot, he has to purchase the whole lot, which may contain diamonds of all sizes.

In this way a man often buys $5,000 worth of diamonds to get certain stones worth but $500 or $1,000.

There is a place set apart for the sale of diamonds by these brokers, and they sit at one side of a small table, while the customer sits opposite. There are long rows of these tables in the room which has a plenty of windows for the light needed.

In no other way is it possible to buy diamonds in Amsterdam. Judge Beers said this is one of the finest cities in the world; it is the Venice of the north. It is built on 90 islands, and one cannot go more than 1,000 feet without coming to or crossing a draw bridge.

It is a city of water streets. The people have a madness for cleanliness and wash the outside of their houses from the eaves to the sidewalk. There is great wealth in the city, and there are great museums, open free to the public, and other fine institutions.

At a museum, the judge was much impressed with Rembrandt's famous picture, "The Night Watch." It is worth crossing the Atlantic to see, he said.

Once while in the city he realized he was a foreigner, when he found 30 or 40 school children staring at him and wondering what language he was speaking.

He thought the street car service in that city the finest he had ever seen. There are 21 lines radiating like the rays of a fan to all parts of the town, and each line is numbered with a gigantic figure on the top of the car, so that at a glance one can tell from a long distance what part of the city the car runs to.

He visited a house where the same family, generation after generation, had lived for 250 years, and they sold but one thing, and that was a drink composed one-half of some kind of wine and the other of spirits.

Two quiet, nicely dressed women waited on customers and sold the drink over a little old wooden bar black with age.

The judge told about hunting for an Episcopal church one Sunday morning and not being able to find it until a stranger who spoke English directed him to a long alley very narrow, which led to the center of a block.

At the Presbyterian church or the Great Dome, he heard a fine organ and good music, and saw stained glass windows 500 years old, which he thought contained richer colors in purple and blue than it is possible to make in this day.

One section of the city is set off as a ghetto or a place of residence for the Jews, of which there are 75,000. There are more Jews there than in Jerusalem.

He spoke of attending a market where only second hand things are sold, such materials as would be put in an ash barrel in this country or sent to a rummage sale.

A trip was made to the Isle of Marken, a very small piece of land in the Zuider Zee. Here all the inhabitants are fishermen, and the men and women wear the outlandish costumes familiar in Dutch pictures. The houses are built on stilts, so that if the water of the sea overruns the island it will not sweep away the houses.

These houses are all of wood. The women wear from 12 to 16 petticoats, weighing about three pounds each, and all wear wooden shoes, the ground is so damp. At Edam the judge saw where the famous cheese of that name is made.

He went to one dairy and was struck with the neatness of the stables where the cows are kept. They occupied one section of the dwelling house and the dairy was in the rear. Great attention is paid to keeping the cows neat and clean. Such a dairy would be a good example for some of our American women who are striving to attain unto certified milk.

Hoarse coughs and stuffy colds that may develop into pneumonia over night are quickly cured by Foley's Honey and Tar, and it soothes inflamed membranes, heals the lungs, and expels the cold from the system. F. B. Brill, local agent.
